

The next page contains a bibliography, represented as data marked-up in XML. There are a total of five errors and five inconsistencies in the mark-up. Clearly circle all the errors and inconsistencies and label them with either an “E” or an “I”. (Note that an error is a violation of the rules for well-formed XML; an inconsistency does not result in an invalid XML document.)

```
<bibliography>
  <entry no="1">
    <name type="full name">William Gibson</name>
    <title type="novel">Neuromancer</title type="novel">
    <publicationInformation>
      <originaldate>1984</originaldate>
      <city>New York</city>
      <publisher>Ace</publisher>
      <date>1986</date>
      <ISBN>9780441569595</ISBN>
    </entry>
  </publicationInformation>
  <bibentry no="2">
    <name type="author">Isaac Asimov</name>
    <title type="novel">I, Robot</title>
    <publicationInformation>
      <originaldate>1950</originaldate>
      <city>New York</city>
      <publisher>Bantam Dell</publisher>
      <date>2004</date>
      <ISBN>9780553294385</ISBN>
    </publicationInformation>
  </bibentry>
  <entry no="3">
    <name type=author>Stephen Baker</name>
    <title type="non-fiction">Final Jeopardy</title>
    <originaldate>2011</originaldate>
    <publicationInformation>
      <place type="city">New York</place>
      <publisher>Mariner Books</publisher>
      <date>2012</date>
      <ISBN>9780547747194</ISBN>
    </publicationInformation>
  <entry>
  <entry no="4">
    <name type="author">Karel Čapek</name>
    <title type="play">R. U. R.</title>
    <publicationInformation>
      <date>1921</date>
      <city>New York</city>
      <publisher>Penguin</publisher>
      <date>2004</date>
      <ISBN>9780141182087</ISBN>
    </publication Information>
  </entry>
</bibliography>
```